Introduction

People around the world love to celebrate.
In China, people celebrate holidays just like we do.
They go to many festivals during the year.
They gather with family to share special foods and to have fun!

The Spring Festival

This festival starts the new year with the loud BANG of firecrockers. Family members from far away can come together. People can buy new clothes to replace what is old and worn. And children are overjoyed to get valuable red envelopes. There is money inside!

A kind of food called dumplings is served for this holiday.

Everyone can watch the Dragon Parade on the first day of the new year.
The long dragon winds up
and down the street.
How many people do you think
are concealed inside the body of the dragon?

The Festival of Clear Brightness

People can celebrate this festival in the beautiful spring weather.

The holiday can include a nice picnic lunch.

On this day, many families honor family members who have died.

 The sky is full of kites during this festival.
 Chinese people have been flying kites for three thousand years!

The Pragon Boat Festival

The Dragon Boat Festival takes place in the summer.

Hundreds of boats can race across rivers and lakes all over China. Each boat has a leader whose only task, or job, is to beat a drum during the race.

 At night the dragon boats can parade across the water.
 Lanterns can float all around the boats.

It is a beautiful sight!

The Moon Cake Festival

Families gather at this festival in the fall when the moon is full and bright.
People of all ages can eat round fruits and round cakes in honor of the moon.

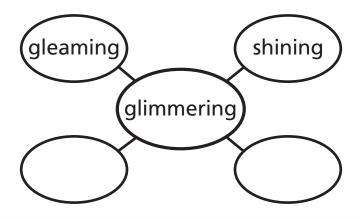

At night, people light candles.
 Children can look up at the sky to find the shape of a rabbit in the moon.
 People feel content as they stare at the glimmering moonlight.
 They can look forward to the next festival!
